Title: Councillor Group - Annual Report

Report

1 Report to Annual General meeting

2 Edinburgh Green Councillors Group: Melanie Main, Alex Staniforth, Gavin Corbett,
3 Steve Burgess, Mary Campbell, Susan Rae, Claire Miller, Chas Booth

4 Since the last AGM in Autumn 2020 Council and Committees resumed responsibilities
5 and met on-line throughout the year. Councillors have continued to work from 6 home, on-line and rarely met officers face to face. Community meetings, notably 7 Community Councils and Parent Councils, have also resumed on-line but not in 8 person. For parents, attendance and participation at meetings has generally 9 increased as on-line meetings give more flexibility for busy parents in the 10 evenings. Councillors have not been able to visit schools or other sites in 11 person in general.

12 However, this has been another year of uncertainty, with a second and third 13 lockdown setting back agendas for a second year. There was hybrid working in 14 Council where the CEO and officers retain some emergency authority but with 15 Council and committees continuing, and the move to recovery as we come out of 16 the pandemic the priority.

17 This year have worked with Cllr Derek Howie, who sits as an independent but is a 18 SGP member, supporting his focus on equality and disability access issues.
19 Although the Green Group numbers 8, Derek has voted with the Greens and Greens 20 regularly deliver 10 votes with support from another independent.

21 Climate change continues to be the priority, the full Green group meeting as a 22 group and individually for each portfolio with lead officers to input into the 23 strategy for the council itself and a discussion on plans for implementing the 24 20-minute city with the Director Place. Steve Burgess is the Group lead on the 25 Climate Crisis. He represents the Green Group at the All Party Oversight Group
26 on Sustainability & Climate Emergency discussing council plans for achieving net
27 zero for both the Council and the City. The aim is to get a city-wide net zero 28 strategy in place before the UN climate conference, Cop26 in Glasgow in 29 November.

30 February is always focussed on the budget in Edinburgh Council and as such a lot 31 of councillors' time is taken up with that, in particular Gavin Corbett's as our 32 finance spokesperson. This year we managed to work with other opposition 33 councillors to ensure that rent for residential council properties was frozen 34 for this year, ensuring those on low incomes in council houses – who may have 35 been on furlough and only 80% of their usual income – get a year's respite from 36 rising rents. Gavin Corbett's overall budget was a 'Green Recovery' budget which 37 put more into parks and greenspace than any other budget as well as serious 38 investment in the city's zero-carbon 2030 goal; setting the target line for 39 other parties seeking to prove that their budgets take the climate crisis and 40 other environmental concerns seriously.

41 In the Spring Council business became notably quieter as Holyrood election 42 campaigning got well underway and Green Councillors joined volunteers working to 43 elect Green MSPs.

44 Some committee highlights from the past months:

45 Mary Campbell brought forward a motion to Education committee to push the 46 council to do more on deferred school starts. This will involve trying to be a 47 pilot authority in 2022 for government-funded deferred places, pushing for 48 premature children to be considered in the legislation, and for funded places to 49 be given for all applications this year. You can read more here.

50 At Transport and Environment Committee, Claire Miller tabled a detailed 51 amendment \(see p25\) to the yearly report on the air quality figures for 52 Edinburgh. The air quality action plan is now 13 years out of date and 53 desperately needs to be rewritten. The city has 5 "air quality management areas" 54 (AQMA) where nitrogen oxides breach the national agreed levels for clean air and 55 a sixth AQMA for small particulates. The amendment passed after a vote, which 56 means that the committee will be prioritising the actions needed to clean up the 57 city's polluted air.

58 Steve Burgess brought a motion to Transport-Environment committee on the urgent
59 need for temporary toilet facilities on the Meadows to cope with the huge 60 numbers of people going there in good weather – it was a relief that these 61 facilities were agreed (all puns intended) and they opened 21st June.

62 Alex Staniforth proposed a motion at Council making clear Edinburgh Council's 63 opposition to the introduction of photo ID for voting on the grounds of 64 disenfranchising voters and informing government ministers of that position.
65 Despite Conservative opposition the motion passed and Edinburgh City is formally 66 opposed to requiring photo ID for voting.

67 Melanie Main succeeded in getting a Climate Change Charter 2030 for the 68 Edinburgh Integration Joint Board agreed, bringing services from A&E to GP
69 services, care homes to uppaid carers support, into line with Edinburgh's
70 Climate Commission recommendations. She was also appointed a Climate Champion.

71 Through Sub-Licensing, Susan Rae finally secured a section in the Taxi Training 72 on safety around cyclists, has been working hard on helping black cab drivers
73 get permission to upgrade their engines to Cat 6 and in relation to short-term
74 lets, encouraging a robust approach to licensing HMO premises.

75 In the Housing Committee, Chas Booth has been pushing the Council to mainstream 76 work to bring empty homes back into use and urging stronger action to tackle 77 land banking.

78 Across the city in local wards this year some actions long fought for came to 79 fruition and others are just getting started:

80 After almost a decade of pressing on dangerous parking and road safety in 81 Fountainbridge-Craiglockhart, Gavin Corbett has welcomed the next steps towards 82 controlled parking in his area: Phase 1 Approved!

83 After thirty years of residents complaining about dangerous driving and rat 84 runs, but only 8 years pressing herself, Melanie Main secured no entry signs to 85 Braid Crescent, and won agreement to close Canaan Lane as part of the Quiet
86 Route, effectively removing the Woodburn Terrace rat run.

87 A week after being elected in May 2017, Alex Staniforth began pressing for 88 Northfield Allotments, in Craigentiny & Duddingston, to have a water supply and 89 it was connected in April 2021.

90 In the city centre ward, Claire has picked up her previous work on creating a
91 buffer zone around the Chalmers Sexual Health Centre on Lauriston Place. In 2018
92 Claire had raised the issue of anti-abortion protests outside the health centre 93 and had been successful in bringing all partners together to agree how to 94 collect information/evidence on the problem. With a new public petition, the 95 subject came back to the council for debate, and Claire has supported calls for 96 a national approach and is actively working with colleagues in COSLA to find 97 solutions for Scotland.

98 Steve Burgess brought a motion to Transport-Environment committee on the urgent
99 need for temporary toilet facilities on the Meadows to cope with the huge 100 numbers of people going there in good weather – it was a relief to residents who 101 have put up with urination and worse on their doorsteps for over a decade, that 102 these facilities were agreed (all puns intended) and they opened 21st June

103 Mary Campbell has been working to ensure community involvement in the future of 104 Portobello Town Hall, and set up a public meeting which led to the creation of 105 Portobello Central.

106 Chas Booth has been tackling noise and air pollution from ships in Leith port.

107 Susan Rae continues to ensure that the feithChooses, first public participation 108 event, goes from strength to strength. After a successful 2021, with the highest 109 ever vote and zero complaints, the Group is now developing both their outreach 110 and funding sources further.

111 Despite the pandemic, Councillors have deal with literally thousands of requests
112 for help from residents and supported and initiated numerous local projects. [You
